

PARTYCONTEST

Scope: These rules shall apply to this contract.

Underlying: The Underlying for this Contract is whether <party> officially contests <election>. Revisions to the Underlying made after Expiration will not be accounted for in determining the Expiration Value.

Source Agency: The Source Agencies are the official election commission or electoral authority governing <election>, the government of the jurisdiction holding <election>, official statements from <party>, Reuters, the Associated Press, Bloomberg, The New York Times, The Guardian, The Wall Street Journal, BBC, CNN, Al Jazeera, and the Financial Times.

Type: The type of Contract is an Event Contract.

Issuance: After the initial Contract, Contract iterations will be listed on an as-needed basis at the discretion of the Exchange and corresponding to the risk management needs of Members.

<party>: <party> refers to a political party, coalition, movement, or electoral alliance specified by the Exchange. May include formal registered parties, electoral coalitions, political movements seeking registration, or merged entities. If <party> changes its official name but maintains legal continuity, the renamed entity is still considered the same <party>.

<election>: <election> refers to a specific democratic election specified by the Exchange, including general elections, presidential elections, parliamentary elections, regional elections, local elections, primaries, by-elections, referendums where parties take official positions, or constituent assembly elections. The election must have a defined date or date range and be conducted under the authority of an official electoral body.

<date>: <date> refers to a calendar date specified by the Exchange. The Exchange may list iterations of the Contract corresponding to variations of <date>.

Payout Criterion: The Payout Criterion for the Contract encompasses the Expiration Values that <party> contests <election> by having at least one candidate officially run representing <party> in at least one constituency, district, or electoral unit when voting occurs.

For purposes of this Contract, <party> "contests" <election> if ANY of the following occur:

- <party> has at least one candidate on the official ballot under the party name or symbol
- <party> fields candidates as part of a formal pre-election coalition or alliance that appears on the ballot
- Candidates explicitly endorsed by <party> appear on the ballot with clear party affiliation indicated
- <party> successfully registers candidates who appear on the final ballot after any legal challenges
- Independent candidates appear on the ballot with official <party> endorsement documented by the electoral authority
- <party> participates in a joint ticket where the party name appears alongside coalition partners

For purposes of this Contract, <party> does NOT "contest" <election> if:

- <party> only endorses candidates from other parties without fielding its own

- <party> announces a boycott and has no candidates on the ballot
- All <party> candidates are disqualified or removed from the ballot before voting occurs
- <party> only conducts write-in campaigns without ballot access
- <party> campaigns but fails to meet ballot access requirements
- <party> only contests the election results legally after voting without having participated
- Candidates claiming <party> affiliation appear on ballot but without official party recognition
- <party> merges into another party which contests under the other party's name only
- <party> is banned, dissolved, or deregistered before ballots are finalized

Additional Resolution Details:

- If <election> occurs in multiple phases or rounds, <party> must appear on the ballot in at least one phase
- For elections with multiple simultaneous races (e.g., upper and lower house), contesting any single race counts
- If <election> is postponed but occurs within one year of the original date, the Contract remains valid
- If <election> is cancelled, annulled, or does not occur within one year, the Contract resolves to No
- If ballots are revised after printing but before voting, the final ballot used for voting determines resolution
- For federal systems, <party> contesting in any state/province counts as contesting the federal election
- Electoral alliances count only if <party> is formally named in the alliance registration
- In proportional representation systems, being on the party list ballot counts as contesting
- In countries requiring minimum candidates across constituencies, meeting any legal threshold for ballot access counts

Examples that would resolve to Yes:

- Democratic Party has candidates on the ballot in all 50 U.S. states
- Labour Party appears on the ballot in 500 of 650 UK constituencies
- <party> has just one candidate in a single district by-election
- <party> joins an electoral coalition that appears on ballots as "Alliance including <party>"
- <party> successfully appeals disqualification and appears on revised ballot
- Regional party only contests in one state but appears on official ballots there
- <party> briefly boycotts then reverses decision and fields candidates who appear on ballot

Examples that would NOT resolve to Yes:

- <party> announces it will contest but misses registration deadline
- All <party> candidates are disqualified for eligibility issues before ballots are printed
- <party> endorses another party's candidates but fields none of its own
- <party> supporters run as independents without official party recognition
- <party> is legally banned before ballot access is determined
- <party> only challenges results in court without having fielded candidates
- <party> attempts write-in campaign only without achieving ballot access
- <party> merges into another party which contests under the new party's name only
